Gov. Willson Signs Two Important Measures.

Gov. Willson signed the Crecelius-Wyatt tobacco bill, providing a heavy penalty for buying or selling pooled tobacco. The bill is intended to stop "dumping" and prevent the sale of tobacco after it has been pooled. Selling tobacco which has been pooled has been one of the chief causes of the raids by night riders. The bill bears the names of Dr. Crecelius, who offered the bill in the House, the Senator G. T. Wyatt, who introduced a similar bill in the Senate. In signing the bill Gov. Willson wrote the following:

"It may be that this measure, which is a new and experimental measure, will not bear the fruit which its supporters promise and hope. It was adopted by an overwhelming majority. Very little remonstrance has been made to me. I leave the law questions which seem likely to be raised under it to the courts, and in the hope that this bill may be useful both directly and in some ways not directly within its scope."

Gov. Willson also signed the Lillard pure food law. This law is similar to the National pure food law and applies to whisky as well as food and drugs.

A Notable Day.

Today is March 17th. It also marks the close of the ground hog's six weeks of promised bad weather. The session of the Legislature will expire by limitation today. The Executive Committee of the Seventh Appellate district meets at Mt. Sterling and declares Judge O'Rear the nominee of the party for another term in the Appellate Court. The Republican Congressional Committee of the Tenth district meets at Mt. Sterling to fix the time and place for holding their convention. Next, but not least, it is St. Patrick's Day and the moon will celebrate by setting full tonight.

It Does the Business.

Mr. E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Maine, says of Bucklen's Arnica Salve: "It does the business; I have used it for piles and it cured them. Used it for chapped hands and it cured them. Applied it to an old sore and it healed it without leaving a scar behind." 25c at Oberdorfer's drug store.

McChord Bill Killed.

The Kentucky Senate defeated the McChord tobacco bill which put the tobacco business under the police power of the State, passing in its stead Senator Burnam's substitute, a drastic anti-trust law. The action of the Senate was a keen disappointment to the Burley Tobacco Society. It is believed that the House will accept the substitute. The House passed "Windy Bill" Thompson's automobile bill limiting the speed of motor cars to ten miles an hour. This bill was killed in the Senate.

Denies Signing Prescriptions.

Dr. Henry Peterson, a well-known veterinary surgeon of near Millersburg, who was indicted by the Harrison county grand jury last week for illegally writing whisky prescriptions, was in Cynthiana to investigate the charges made against him. He denies ever having written whisky prescriptions and claims that those on file with his name on them were not written or signed by him. He would like to find the men who used his name as the means of obtaining liquor.

Hung Jury.

Declaring that an agreement was impossible the jurors in the case of John Atner, in the Breathitt Circuit Court, who was on trial in Breathitt Circuit Court, for alleged complicity in the murder of Town Marshal Jas. Cockrill, was discharged at noon Wednesday by Judge William Holt. The eight days of legal battle had been spent in vain. The jury stood eight for acquittal and four for conviction.

That Brownville Affair.

In connection with the report of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs on the Brownville riot, which was made Wednesday, the President transmitted a message, in which he said that the facts set forth in his order dismissing the negro soldiers had been substantiated by the testimony by the committee. He recommended in his message that the time for the reinstatement of the discharged soldiers, which has expired, be extended for a year in order to permit the President to reinstate any of the discharged men who did not fall within the terms of his dismissal.

A Letter From New Orleans.

The city of New Orleans or the "Crescent City" as it is characteristically called, is not seen at its best during the Mardi Gras carnival. The streets and hotels are packed and jammed to overflowing. Ordinarily those two things are things of beauty within themselves. Of course in the old part of the city—the Latin and French quarters, as it is termed—the streets are very narrow and the buildings low, however every visitor must see that part of New Orleans before they have seen the city at all.

Owing to the location near the gulf it is one of the greatest seaports in America. There is no material difference in the Mobile carnival and the New Orleans carnival, except in the latter city it was on a more elaborate and costly scale. The King appeared with his royal entourage followed by his satellites heading a parade consisting of beautiful and unique floats. A great many of the clubs and secret orders took active part in the celebration, but the Masons were conspicuously absent, only as individuals appearing at all.

During the afternoon and evening of the second day the streets were filled with maskers. Some of the costumes were beautiful and others attractive because of their uniqueness. Happiness and mirth seemed to permeate even the air.

There is a club in the city called "The Carrie Nation Club." Its members are not confined to the Crescent City but its meetings and banquets are a part of the carnival celebrations. One of the principal speakers this year was a Kentuckian and the New Orleans Daily Picayune in its account of the banquet says: "The Hon. Jerry Porter, from the Pennyrile district of Kentucky, spoke to the delights of the cup that cheers and invites the edibles that comes in courses, and with spaces and food and liquids intermittedly makes a man believe that he built the United States and wonders what he is going to do with it now that Teddy Roosevelt won't work at the National Capital any more."

The week was a very busy one here besides the Mardi Gras celebrations nearly every fraternal organization known had its meetings at this time. The most conspicuous noticed were the Shriners. The parade on Saturday afternoon was a very pleasing sight. The Masons have four large chapters in the city.

There is one very important feature about New Orleans that every traveler is delighted with and that is the good things one gets to eat. Each restaurant and hotel has a reputation of its own for certain dishes, the receipts known only to themselves. It has been said that many famous dishes are not to be had at BeGuay's—the famous French restaurant and the receipt died with Madam BeGuay, a few years ago.

One always visits the cemeteries. There are about twenty-five in one vicinity. They are beautiful with native plants and blooming flowers with drives and walks well kept throughout. They are especially interesting to people living further North, as the sepulchral holding the bodies are all above the ground and some of them are very handsome and costly.

It is very interesting to visit the wharfs where one may get a glimpse of the wonderful amount of export business done. Those tremendous ships arriving and departing daily to all parts of the world.

We overheard a very amusing conversation in the hotel, however, that would indicate a slowness some places, and as it relates, in a way, to ourselves, we will repeat it. It seems that the conversation pertained to some recent contract between some baseball teams. After few words of whispered conversation one man said: "There is one thing certain, (laying a newspaper aside) that if it is in the paper everyone else is sure to know it first."
